Design Dilemma – ask our designers

Question: “How do I create 2 separate seating areas, making 2 separate rooms, when they are right next to each other?”

Answer: In this photo we were able to separate the living spaces by building a half wall and creating an arch. The opening brings the light thru from the window in the family area while still maintaining a division. I added the tall plant on the left to muffle noises and create a further partition. To unify the spaces I used similar color palettes, window treatments and furniture lines. If you are unable to build a wall you can create the same illusion with a piece of furniture. Placing a substantial credenza between the spaces, adding tall plants or trees and significant accessories on top of the credenza will create the same feeling as a half wall.

Events and Happenings!

Design Topic - Lighting

One of the most important elements in home design is lighting and it serves two functions; creating ambiance and providing task lighting.

Ambient lighting sets the mood and functional lighting is needed for tasks, such as reading or working.

Oddly enough, it is the one design essential that is usually left to the last minute and selected without much thought!

Lighting brings your rooms to life by enhancing your choice of furnishings, textures and colors. Currently, design trends look to larger lamps with interesting shades and bases and mixing styles adds a designer flair to any room décor.

Just in at Carls are lamps with chrome accents, glass lamps with glass shades, shades with coordinating fabric inside, and multi-dimensional shades that are too fabulous to describe.

Stop in to a Carls location near you and ask for a designer to show you the latest lighting merchandise, you'll be glad you did!
